

The award of national excellent doctoral dissertations in information science is coming

China Society for Scientific and Technical information

Under the new development paradigm in the new era, information science and information industry have been increasingly crucial. The development of information science heavily lies in talents, especially those senior professionals. To stimulate the majority of doctoral students' creativity, diligence, and innovation, as well as to support doctoral students to accomplish high-quality dissertations; to promote the further development of information science; to provide a strong talent guarantee for the sustainable development of information science and information industry in the new era, on the basis of extensive consultation, The Organizing Committee of the National Doctoral Academic Forum on Information Science and The Qiu Junping & Yan Jinlian Educational Development Foundation of Hangzhou Dianzi University jointly initiated the award of the National Excellent Doctoral Dissertations in Information Science (NEDDIS). We established the criteria for the NEDDIS, which have been approved by the award committee at its first plenary meeting. Now we announced it here in order to make the reward process fair, just, and open, thus to improve the credibility of the selection. The selection of NEDDIS awardees will start on January 1, 2022. Potential candidates should be those who will successfully defend their dissertations after January 1, 2022, and whose dissertations qualify the criteria in the NEDDIS. In addition, relevant doctoral programs in corresponding institutions are allowed to recommend qualified candidates with regards to the NEDDIS criteria. The Secretariat of the committee of the NEDDIS will start to receive the application materials of excellent doctoral dissertations from January 1, 2022. The Secretariat is located in Chinese Academy of Science and Education Evaluation at Hangzhou Dianzi University (3rd floor of Science and Technology Building). The cell phone number of secretary Wang Lin (male) is 15320198133, and his e-mail is: davidwang@hdu.edu.cn.
